

I strongly object to the attempt to weaken Indiana's telephone privacy law by imposing the federal "established business relationship" exemption on Indiana consumers as proposed by the Consumer Bankers Association.

Companies with whom I do business with should only be able to contact me by telephone if the reason for the call is related to particular past or current transactions or accounts between me and those companies. Phone calls for any other purposes from companies with whom I do business with should be prohibited.